

What are Forklifts used for?

Forklifts specialize in moving products and material on a large scale. They eliminate the manpower of having to lift and transport materials by hand, providing an efficient mode of moving product. Forklifts are used in the material handling industry for various applications.